Flowers, Fruit, Vegetables, and Pancy Work Inspected by 5,000 Visitors. Five thousand people were on the fair grounds of the Monmouth Agricultural Society at Freehold, N. J., yesterday. It was the second day of the society's twenty-seventh annual exibition. Stages had been brought from Long Branch, Asbury Park, and Red Bank to convey assengers, who had come to town by rail, from a two depots in Freehold to the grounds, half a mile out of town. A ride through the long streets of Freehold, famed for their arching avpues of great trees, was as enjoyable as a visit to the agricultural productions of Monmouth County. The half-mile race track is the chief object of importance on the fair grounds, for buildings have been crected and the booths and restaurants thrown together so as to ena-ble the pleasure seekers to overlook the race track even when they are inspecting farm protrotting is so small that the farmers' wagons that had been driven to the paling on the edge of the track nearly surrounded it. The farmers had taken the horses from the wagons and oarninges and hitched them to the high board fence encircling the grounds. The grand stand was jammed, and even the steps loading to it cresked under the weight of those who could not find seats aloft.

The floral hall was not large enough for the exhibits. Every department was fuller than ever before. Next to a gorzeous array of cut flowers were a hundred plates of apples that mingled their odors with those of the flowers. At one end of the building were oats, wheat, and corn, specimens of cornstaks measuring fitteen feet from the roots to the top of the tassel, broom corn, enormous watermelons of the Egyptian variety, sets of harness, a squash wolghing ninety pounds, and many other specimens of what the farmers called "garden sass," while at the other end of the hall were planos, on one of which the exhibtor persisted in playing either the "Racket Galop" or Dancing in the Barn" all day. Specimens of water color painting, funny whatnots with little sea shells glued all over them, bed counterpanes and quits drooping from overhead, and a thousand little fancy dress articles were also exhibited. In the middle of the building was a big glass case, like an old-inshioned cupboard, and in it were jellies, jams, preserves, cakes, and pies. The cupboard was locked and all day noses were wistfully flattened against the pinnes.

Cider was the only stimulating beverage sold panes.

Cider was the only stimulating beverage sold on the ground, but even with this fluid three farmer youths became jubilant and danced a bear dance on the green. A crowd gathered around and laughed at them until they slunk

The Merions went to the bat first, sending in D. Morris and H. Sayres to meet the attack of Messrs. Gillean and Logan. Thayer, Jr., and Ashbridge, who retired for 4 and 3 respectively. He was joined by Clay, and between them they made a good stand. It was not until bowlers had been changed several times, dinner caten, and the game resumed that these two parted company. Thayer was finally bowled for 36, his score containing doubles and singles and a 6 hit to mid on, which was sent clear over the fence. Six wickets for 88. Clay, after scoring 28. among which were several notable hits, was caught by Kirchhoffer at mid off. Seven wickets for 99. F. L. Baily and W.
